

Cookie Stand Guidelines

Girl Scouts can work with their caregiver to host a Cookie Stand! A Cookie Stand is similar to a lemonade stand. Girls from one household, with their caregiver, may participate in a Cookie Stand on their own property.

The caregiver is responsible for the cookies they sign out from the troop, and since they are supervising their own Girl Scout(s), membership and background checks are not required. Cookie Stands allow girls to have the booth experience without extra requirements of caregivers.

Cookie Stand Process & Rules

- At a Cookie Stand, there must be a minimum of one adult/caregiver and maximum of the girls from same household.
- The Cookie Stand must be held at the residence of the host family. Cookies stands may not take place on another street within your area of residence.
- A Cookie Stand allows for one adult and Girl Scouts from the same household to manage cookie sales on their own property. This does not change the guidelines for traditional booths to have 2 unrelated adults (due to the troop's financial responsibility & girl-adult ratio requirements).
- Financial Responsibility – The caregiver must connect with the Troop Cookie Champion (TCC) to obtain cookie inventory (and sign receipts) for the Cookie Stand. Any cookies obtained by a caregiver for a cookie stand follow our Caregiver Debt responsibility guidelines.
- Multiple Troops – Households with girls from more than one troop must work with each troop's TCC for inventory calculations and funds due, if girls are working a Cookie Stand together. Cookie sales through the Digital Cookie app are not transferable between girls in different troops, so be cognizant of how cookie sales occur at Cookie Stands.
- Cookie Stands are not permitted to be entered into eBudde as a booth to appear on the Booth Finder.
- All general cookie booth guidelines as pertaining to etiquette, setup, and teardown must be followed at cookie stands.
